

JOB HORNER IS VERSATILE LAD

Besides Being Athletic Star, He Draws, Paints and Plays
Piano.

ALSO TAKES A FLYER AT SCULPTOR'S ART

Some of the remarkable performances credited to modest Grand Rapids student.

Ann Arbor, Mich., January 9.—Joe Horner, Jr., from Grand Rapids, is perhaps the most versatile man the Ann Arbor campus ever has seen. Glancing down his wonderful list of track records one would hardly give him credit for being more than a great all-around athlete. But Horner is more than that. The lad who broke the 100-yard record last fall is a first-class artist and a first-class musician. He is also a sculptor and a pianist. He has many other sides to his life outside of athletics. He is a very quiet, low-keyed fellow who does not draw attention to himself. He is a very well-to-do lad but he has no airs. He is a first-class pianist with a love for nature, one must recognize him along the winding Huron river on a spring day. There, after the snow has melted, he is seen painting the landscape in the most delightful manner—the painting of nature, the capturing of the details have taken several fine scores at the Grand Rapids state fair.

Horner is also perfectly at home in the office. He is a first-class stenographer in spite of the fact that he is only a student. He is also a first-class stenographer in their various activities.

Good at Piano.

At the piano, Horner excels. At Ann Arbor, Michigan, he has been playing since he was six years old. He is a first-class pianist and he is a first-class musician. He is a first-class pianist and he is a first-class musician. He is a first-class pianist and he is a first-class musician.

An Amateur Sculptor.

An amateur sculptor, Horner has shown ability since he was a child. He has been making figures of men and animals since he was a child. He has been making figures of men and animals since he was a child. He has been making figures of men and animals since he was a child.

After Indoor Records.

On February 12 Horner expects to attend the American indoor championship meet at Boston where he will have a chance to show his work in comparison with his countrymen. He is a first-class pianist and he is a first-class musician. He is a first-class pianist and he is a first-class musician.
