

TRAVELS WEST, GAINS A TITLE

Eastern High Boy, Passed
By Here, Achieves Fame
in St. Louis.

Loren Murchison, former Detroit Eastern High School athlete, is in the East showing up Detroit as an athletic center.

Murchison is now living in St. Louis, and since leaving Detroit has become a national sprint champion. He has captured one or two races in every meet he has competed in thus far this winter in Philadelphia, New York and Boston.

In Detroit Murchison was only an ambitious athlete who was given no encouragement. He is no different than many others who have come up athletically in this city in the last few years and whose futures were spoiled by remaining here. Loren left Detroit and went to St. Louis. There his running ability was recognized and encouraged by athletic clubs. He was given training and entered in meets. Soon he was helping to advertise the Missouri metropolis by grabbing championship after championship. Today the former Detrolter is without doubt the most sensational sprinter in the country.
