Big Crowds Watch Major Teams Play

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

In spite of the fact that the 1936 pennant winners are having trouble remaining in the first division—perhaps for that very reason—major league baseball has suddenly become a paying proposition.

At least four banner crowds turned out yesterday to see teams that are contending for the top places and one pair that are far down in the standing but usually provide plenty of entertainment.

A crowd of 28,303 cash customers piled into the Polo grounds to see the New York Giants, playing their first Sunday home game of the season, continue their pursuit of the St. Louis Cardinals by trimming Pittsburgh 8 to 6. It was the seventh straight Giant victory. The Yankees and Indians, first and third respectively in the American league, drew more than 27,000 into Cleveland's league park to see the home team take an 8 to 4 drubbing while Boston's popular Red Sox drew some 23,000 fans to watch them edge out Chicago's White Sox, 8 to 7.

The erratic Dodgers and Reds attracted some 17,000 Brooklyn customers for an odd contest which the Reds won 3 to 2 although they got only four hits against Brooklyn's 12. A home run by Lee Handley and a single by the same rookie, preceded by a walk and followed by Elki Cuyler's single, turned the trick for Cincinnati.

The Cardinals maintained their slim half-game margin over the Giants by walloping the Phillies 10 to 3; the Tigers regained an interest in the first division, by overcoming Washington 8 to 7 and the Browns broke their latest losing streak by trimming the Athletics 8 to 5 in the day's other games. The Cubs and Red rivals for fourth place in the
