

Ann Arbor Track Club Appears To Be Potent

The Ann Arbor Track Club is aiming to make a name for itself and a look at its roster indicates it may do just that.

Rod Denhart, Steve Moorehead, Charles Snygg, Wally Schaffer, John Gregg, Marshall Dickerson, Jackson Steffe and Steve Williams are some of the team members.

Denhart is the current Big Ten record holder in the pole vault after winning the event for Michigan last spring.

Moorehead is a 4:09 miler and former team captain at Penn State.

Snygg is a former cross-country captain who ran for Swarthmore College.

Schaffer, Gregg, Dickerson, Steffe and Williams are former Michigan trackmen who trained under Coach Don Canham. Schaffer is a half-miler, Gregg a sprinter, Dickerson a quarter-miler, Steffe a broad jumper, and Williams a high jumper.

The person most responsible for the organization of the track club, which will take part in the Michigan Relays at Yost Fieldhouse on Feb. 2 and the Michigan Indoor Championships here on Feb. 23, is Don McEwen, the former Wolverine stand-out distance runner.

McEwen coached the Cranbrook High track team and the Ann Arbor High cross-country team before going into administrative work at the local high school.

"We want the Ann Arbor Track Club to gain a good reputation and become a vigorous organization," says McEwen.

Two types of membership are available, each at $5. One is a membership for those in competition and the other is an associate membership for those who wish to give active support.

Among those holding associate memberships are Phil Diamond, nationally recognized authority on timing, and University High Coach Charles Belknap.

And club membership is not limited to men. Running some events this winter and in the spring will be the Ann Arbor "Anns"—Francie Kraker and Carmen Brummet—two young ladies who do well in the 440-yard run.
