Pine Knoll Nursery Farm To Thriving

By VI HAWLEY
Thirteen years ago Ron and Penny Baird said goodbye to the security of well-paying jobs and traded city living for a lonesome, run-down farm in rural Union City. It turned out to be the best decision they ever made, they agreed, as they looked over the shrubs, flowering plants and healthy trees which attract customers to their thriving business venture, Pine Knoll Nursery. "Right after the wedding I was on the phone, 'How did it go?'" I asked. "You've bought yourself a farm on a land contract for just under the $20,000!" "Boy, were we excited. We had to take out a loan on our night computer class at Lake Michigan College. Penny, his wife, shared his interest, working for the same company. Ron, though, there was a feeling that something was lacking. Together they were landscaping jobs. The late Roy Olson was one of his first customers, picking Baird to take care of his home and property in Coldwater. Others followed. Landscaping helped farmers in his youth. He found himself, when out on a drive, comparing farm property to acreage back home. Penny, was wistful and more than a little disappointed to note the years were passing without a baby in the offing. Both of them could visualize the luxury of quiet, country living. Hearing of a farm to auctioned by Dale Dean, they drove east to scout it out. They found the house run down and drawing trade from as far away as Indiana. "Word of mouth has been our best friend," said Ron. "God blessed us," said Ron. Rebekah years later they welcomed Indiana to avail themselves of B
