Well this ends another season. Thanks to all of the meet managers and coaches that sent results in. With mail service the way it is most mailed results do not arrive until Tuesday, and then we don't get out mail until 4 or later, making for some long Tuesday nights. This year many meet managers used the FAX number. Monday now became the day when most results arrived. Many of the FAXs were there in the morning. This made it much easier for Mary to get the typing done. We really appreciate those who FAXed the results. A special thanks to Mary who does all of the typing, takes the votes, this year wound up putting most of the issues together.

Thanks again to the panel members for all their support and time with the ratings. Many also had scores from invitationals which helped put the invitational points into the ratings before we had results from the meets. We try to change about 3 or 4 of the panel each year. Panel members come from the subscription list. Since the ratings are based on invitationals we try to include coaches that participate in invitationals on a regular basis. This gives the panel members a chance to see a lot of the teams. If you would be interested in serving on the rating panel, drop me a line. We try to split the panel up by class and area of the state, so all classes and areas of the state are covered.

As we did results we noticed that numbers seemed to be down, both in teams at some invitationals and also numbers on teams. Our school added soccer last fall, and then this fall girls tennis. Both probably affected my numbers. I don't mind losing a kid to a sport in season, after all the sports are supposed to be for the kids. And as long as they are participating, then the program is doing what it is for. We need to get more kids involved, and additional programs is one way.

The thing I don't like is the out of season activity. Last spring a coach said he did not have numbers one year until one day he went into the gym and took all the rims down. At one time it seemed coaches encouraged their athletes to participate in another sport during the off season. Now some coaches seem to act as if they own the kids and expect them to do activities for their sport all year. It is interesting, the most readily available sport that kids can work on is probably the one that is the most problem. Kids can pick up a ball and find a hoop just about anywhere. On my block there are four. Where can a kid just high jump, pole vault, use a wrestling mat during the off season. I know kids over the years would love to use of those facilities at the school's in the off season. But why do open gyms usually only entail only one thing, and that one thing is readily available in the community?

The coach of one of the top cross country programs in the state said this fall that his basketball coach does not encourage his kids to run cross country because "it hurts their jumping." A parent told me that one of our coaches did not like cross country because it was too much jarring for the body. I don't know which is more jarring running on a dirt or road surface, or the constant up & down to basketball.

Several years ago one of my sons was scheduled for a "3 man" evaluation or observation/workout the Monday morning at 6:30AM after he had to run his state cross country final. Coaches stress the "attitude" as one of the deciding factors in who makes/plays on the team, so who is not going to show up when scheduled. Now of course there is the need to go to as many 3 man basketball tournaments in the fall as you can, most of which happen to involve a Saturday. I know these are not isolated occurrences from talking with coaches.

I read last spring or summer in either Runners World or USA Today that the Simon Gratz, out of Philly, usually ranked as one of the top high school basketball teams in the nation requires all of his athletes to run cross country if they are not doing anything in the fall. Their cross country teams is usuall one of the better ones in the city. So maybe there is some help.

I don't know if you knew, but a group was hired to do the finish lines for all the state final sites. They are active and do a lot of road runs. I have help at runs where they do the results. At our meet the chute was interesting. Talking with one of the starter/referees Friday night at the motel he was upset because it was not up so he could see it. It was supposed to be up by 8:00 AM. When I went out to run the course at 9:00, nothing other that the overhead streamers were up. Around 10:30 the chute was up and ready. I don't think there was more than 15 yards from the finish line to the narrow part. Then there were four chutes, maybe 15 yards long. They were told by coaches either longer chutes or more of them, were needed. By race time they had extenede the chutes another 10 yards or so. Nothing was in front of the chute to keep the crowd back.

They had all kinds of help at the end of the chute to pull tags, record, put the tags on the stringers. At the begining of the chute they had 2 maybe 3 people. They were told more help would be needed. The individual that had a rope to change chutes said no problem, he would just move the rope and send them into another chute. He wouldn't listen, he new how to do it. Well sure enough around thirtyth in the crowd came, the runners backed up to the finish line, somebody went down.....

Individual place cards were not given the runners so coaches would know places. One of the finish people said place cards were not given out because they did not know the runners places, because of the multiple chutes. Places were not know until the tags were taken off the stringers in the order the stringers were filled. A concern was expressed whot would happen if the stringer was dropped, or something. They also recoreded numbers as the runners cleared the chute and this was the back-up. We were told they didn't have mixups. Talking to a coach at another class, he know of girls that were asked their places, or where they finished by the finish people..... I heard the other two sites seemed to go well. I will bet the group doing the finish line got a lot more money than the meet management that was responsible for the entire meet.

AGAIN- Thanks for all your support for CCIR, especially those that sent results or served on the panel. HOpe you has a successful season and are looking foward to next. year. Hope to see many of you at MITCA.
